Maget Family Bible Records

This information provided by Michelle Slabaugh:

This Bible originally belonged to Priscilla Drew who married Samuel Maget. The Bible evidently went to their son, John Drew Maget, who moved to Northampton Co. N.C. from Surry Co., Virginia. The family migrated from Northampton Co. NC to Fayette Co. TN in the 1830s then on to what would become Cross County, AR in the 1850s. The Bible contains births of slaves starting in 1793 as well as birth and deaths of the slave owners. The Bible is too fragile to be handled so is not available to the public. Scanned images of the vital records are available and can be requested by emailing crossmuseum@sbcglobal.net or contacting Cross County Museum & Archives, 711 E Union Ave, PO Box 943 Wynne, Arkansas 72396. Copies of the images and a transcription of the names recorded in the Bible can be found below.

The Bible was loaned to the Cross County Museum & Archives by Tommie Hare, a direct descendent of John Drew Maget. Tommie's grandmother was early Cross County historian Jewell Sigman Hare. Dr. Thomas Dabney Hare married Annie Deadrick. Annie's mother was Martha Virginia Maget, a daughter of John Drew Maget. More information about the family tree can be accessed through the Cross County Historical Society's website www.cchs1862.org or at rootsweb.com

John D. Maget used slaves to build a home for daughter Martha & her husband Capt. Isaac Newton Deadrick when they married. The home which is listed on the National Register of Historic Places is located at Levesque, AR but in very poor condition. Additional information about the home can be found at the Southern Roots website of Debbie Yates

Francis Marion Hare – F.M. Hare, one of the most prominent farmers of Cross County and among its old settlers, is a son of Jacob and Emma M. (Wheeler) Hare... in 1854 he moved to Arkansas and settled in Cross County... F. M. Hare was employed as overseer of his father's slaves for a number of years, and in 1861 organized a company for the army, joining the Fifth Arkansas Infantry; he was appointed first lieutenant. The regiment was commanded first by Col. Cross, but afterward was put under the command of Col. Murray, of Pine Bluff, a graduate of West Point, being with Morgan in his raid through Ohio, during which Mr. Hare was captured at Buffington Island, on July 19, 1863. He was taken to Johnson's Island and kept nine months, and then transferred Point Lookout and afterward to Fort Delaware, from which place he was exchanged and rejoined his regiment. After the war, he returned home and found the farm dilapidated, the Negroes set at liberty and fences burned. Mrs. Hare, the mother of our subject, had succeeded in fencing up some forty acres and had a small crop of corn. Mr. Hare took hold of the old place on his return from the army and remained upon it for two years, when he was married in 1867 to Miss Lizzie Reid. Mr. and Mrs. Hare are the parents of ten children, nine still surviving: Pearl; Eda; Emma; Nellie; Birdie; Francis; Sallie B.; Thomas R.; and Frederick. Mr. Hare was born in Fayette County, Tennessee in 1838.

F. M. Hare died 21 Aug 1895 and is buried at the historic Mount Zion Cemetery near Vanndale.

VISITING COUNTY'S OLDEST HOME

By Sandy Jordan, of the Wynne Progress Staff

<http://freepages.genealogy.rootsweb.ancestry.com/~lunsford/cemeteries/DeadrickHouse.htm>

Once called Magnolia Grove, the oldest house in Cross County owned by John H. Johnston is a reminder of bygone days. The upstairs door used to open onto a balcony supported by columns. Magnolia treesa croquet court to which young people...area gathered for afternoon recreation.

Nestled under the magnolias, the large white house at Levesque owned by John H. Johnston is the oldest house still standing in Cross County. It was built around 1850 by John D. Maget for his daughter, Virginia, who married I. N. Deadrick.

Using all slave labor, Mr. Maget had everything in the house handmade. The lumber was sawed by two slaves at a time. A log was placed across wooden horses and two workers, one on top and one below, used a big saw to cut each board. An old family Bible is said to be in existence which lists the names of all the slaves who built the house.

The antebellum home was originally T-shaped with rooms 20 feet square and 12' x 20'. There was a fireplace in each of the six main rooms. Square nails were used in the construction. The windows and doors were handmade. The flooring is said to have been exceptionally beautiful with each board extending the full length of the rooms. The ceilings were more than 12 feet high, probably 14 feet.

Mrs. Annie Stein Smith was married in the lovely old home after her parents came from Mississippi and bought it. She remembers when the old house had a narrow upstairs and downstairs porch with columns. Her parents took this down and built a screened porch all across the front of the house and also added another room in back of the kitchen.

Mr. John H. Johnston bought the house in 1926 and later had the Mt. Vernon porch removed. An area on the hill behind the house, referred to as Deadrick Cemetery, was excepted from the deed. It is located at the very summit of the hill at the foot of the majestic cedar tree.

Mrs. T. D. Hare, who was county historian for many years, referred to it in her notes as her only recollections of being in the house. She recalled falling down the hill as she attended the funeral services for Sam Vann who was buried there. Access to the cemetery is still difficult and steep but the marble markers remain as reminders of the respected people of early Cross County. In 1961 Thomas Baker climbed the hill to record the markers for Mr. Hare. Here is a list:

Dr. Thomas D. Hare, born March 12, 1852, died June 4, 1909;

John Alvah Hare, born November 15, 1878, died February, 1916;

Garland Newton Hare, born February 28, 1889, died June 20, 1912;

Annie E. Hare, wife of Dr. T. D. Hare, born April 3, 1853, died February 18, 1899;

David G. Hare, July 2, 1881; John Dacus Deadrick, born July 21, 1886, died November 21, 1888;

Lucy Annie Hare, daughter of T. D. Hare, born November 5, 1886, died December 17, 1886;

N. Deadrick, born September 5, 1828, died April 29, 1884;

Mrs. I. N. Deadrick, born October 1832, died May 5, 1887;

John D. Maget, born January 5, 1793, died August 31, 1868;

Mary M. Deadrick, born March 22, 1855, died August 24, 1857;

John M. Deadrick, born March 29, 1857, died June 1, 1860;

J. T. Hendrickson, born January 3, 1844, died September 13, 1895.

Of the people who have been buried here we find John D. Maget for whom Maggott Slough is believed to have named although the spelling was changed through the years.

In several instances Goodspeeds History of Eastern Arkansas refers to the community now known as Levesque as Deadrick. It was named Levesque in 1886 when the east-west railroad from Memphis to Bald Knob was completed. The railroad company named the station Levesque in honor of Captain James Levesque.

According to a story found in both Mrs. Hare's notes and in Chowning's HISTORY OF CROSS COUNTY ARKANSAS, "Mrs. Deadrick once held several Yankee soldiers at bay in the home when they came to search for her husband, who unknown to the soldiers was hiding upstairs. Mrs. Deadrick stood on the stairs with a pistol leveled at the soldiers and told them 'I'll blow your brains out if you come up these stairs.' The men finally left empty handed.

A picture of the house as it used to be was painted by Mrs. Julia

Gardner under the direction of Mrs. Hare who described the old manse from her childhood memories.
